i teach a group of 5th and 6th graders on wednesday nights. we usually have about 40 children in my group. we have a 25 minute counsel time and this is where this book comes in handy. they relate to the stories i read them, to what happens in their life everyday. it gives my class a chance to see Gods way of handling the trying days of growing up. what a great way to help my class learn about God and try to live life with him in their life.

My 10 year old son is really enjoying this book. The pages are shorts, sweet and totally applicable to his age group. It's nice that they have a little activity on each page to tie everything together.

I really wanted a devo for my 8 year old that he would be interested in and connect with. He is on a 5th grade reading level so I opted for the ages 10-12. Perfect fit for him. Although he is in the second grade it is right on his level.

This year has been tough on my grandsons emotionally and I thought this devotion for boys would be encouraging. Cool Devotions for Guys entitled "Gotta Have God." The book begins having the boys think about how special they are by listing their talents and gifts. They develop a Coat of Arms for their family and work on activities to discover who they are in Christ. Four major problems are discussed; Fear, Anger, Sadness, and Worry. Brief devotions include a verse of scripture and a one sentence prayer just enough for a boy this age. One section I am partial to includes twenty positive characteristics including Humility, Reverence, and Responsibility. It provides scenarios where the boys have to make a choice about the situation which will define their character. Word Finds, Crossword puzzles, Fill in the Blank sentences, and many interesting activities reinforce the teaching for being the best they can be. The section titled "My Journey with God" includes prayer, reading the Bible, Abiding in Christ, and Evangelism. What a wonderful book so full of information and guidelines preteen boys need to ground them in the Truth before going into High School. My younger grandson will better learn Christian values from this book and I think he will enjoy the puzzles and activities. This pdf of this book was given to me by Rose Publishing for my honest appraisal. I bought a book for my grandson.

We've been buying this devotional series since our son could write and he loves them. He looks forward to working on them every night. Our son was eight years old when he started this book and it was perfect for him. I'm not sure if a 10-year old would get as much out of it. Overall, we love this series because it makes the message of the bible fun and relevant.

My kids have been doing these since they were school age, as part of their waking up routine. They love them and it takes no prodding to encourage them to get into God's Word and think about how it applies to their daily lives.

This was a gift for my niece that just turned 9. It is a wonderfully written book. God is incredible and this book helps little ones understand his love for them. The book is just the right length. easy to sit down at bed time and read to your child. I highly recommend.

My grandson loves this book. Written for his age range and produces good devotional habits. I would recommend this highly.
