Customer Reviews

The Ten Boys and Ten Girls set give engaging biography sketches of well known Christians throughout history. I would recommend them for ages 8-12. They are easy reading with about 8-10 pages per person. Each book in the five book set concentrates on ten who "made a difference", "changed the world" etc. My girls have loved both sets equally and I have learned so much myself about the lives of so many who are role models in the Christian walk.

We use this in lieu of trial and triumph. T&T was just too 'old' .... It wasn't engaging for my younger children and it was far too graphic and depressing. Lightkeepers isn't graphic but it tells the truth and actually engages the reader/listener more. This book set is amazing. It is written in such an engaging style that it keeps even my 5/6year old hooked! I love everything about these books and am so thankful that there is something like this to use. I can't write enough good things about these books :)

i think this set of books is amazing...they are full of Truth and Inspiration! i have purchased several of these as gifts and would give a set to every boy i know if it were possible!!! :)to God be the glory~r

Purchased this set as a confirmation gift for my nephew, because one of the biographies features his namesake. Each of the biographies is accessible for readers who are just being introduced to "chapter books"; a perfect launch pad for sparking interest in deeper study. Love these books!

I bought these as a Christmas present for my son. They're wonderful, interesting, easy to read short stories. We read one or two stories a day and they've all been interesting. If you really like one of the biographies, you can always do more research on that person. This is just enough to get you interested. Great Living Books!

I wanted to love these books, I really did. I bought them as a present for my son's sixth birthday. The concept is wonderful, and the story we read did lead to some good discussion. BUT it's SO poorly executed. First off, the font is comic sans. Seriously?!?!? Comic sans?!? You just can't take a book written in comic sans seriously. Besides that, the layout is totally unprofessional -paragraphs separated by so many spaces make the story itself choppy. But the real shame is that the writing is awful and confusing! Jumps forward in time are abrupt. The writing itself is horrendous ("John took ill" and "teach the children maths"). And the arch of the story is jagged (includes biographical type information irrelevant to the overall point of the short story). It's poorly edited. Poorly written. Such a shame.

We homeschool. These are absolutely wonderful. Each story inside is a true story and is followed by discussion questions afterward. My 10 year old. ..5th grade. ..son really enjoys them. We read them out loud. We read the girls set after this one. But don't be fooled...since they're true stories these really are great for boys or girls. Each one is strongly christian and faith based....revealing godly examples of christian character to us. I love them.

Our elementary-age children appreciate reading about such inspiring role models. We purchased two books, but they liked them so much, we had to purchase the entire boxed sets, for both boys and girls! We have also given these as birthday gifts for classmates, who also enjoyed reading worthwhile literature.
